MISSION

Since 1876, Texas A&M University has been about transforming lives. In the Center for Executive Development (CED), we're committed to developing transformational leaders across the globe by equipping them with the knowledge, skills, and behaviors to personally and professionally empower organizational success.

BIOGRAPHY

Ben has served as the Assistant Dean for Executive Education for the CED at Texas A&M University for more than 20 years. He has also been a Clinical Professor in the Department of Management for Mays Business School for more than 30 years. An Aggie and member of the Texas A&M University community since 1988, Ben served in various leadership positions across campus prior to joining CED.

In his role as Assistant Dean for Executive Education, Ben helps executives and organizations strengthen skills and capabilities to prepare leaders for what's next. He works closely with clients and faculty to design and deliver executive education experiences that drive real, measurable business impact. Ben's collaborative approach to developing transformative learning experiences and commitment to service excellence have led to deep, lasting client relationships.

Ben's infectious charisma has made him a sought after instructor and speaker. He is the recipient of numerous service and teaching awards.

A native of Georgia, Ben got to Texas as quick as he could. He and his wife, Sherri, have been married for almost 30 years and have three grown children. They hope to start welcoming grandchildren to the world soon! He is an active member of his church and numerous civic organizations. An accomplished vocalist and pianist, Ben has been known to serenade his staff as well as program participants.
